The theme for 2019 is Adventure!

Whether your adventure is bizarre or excellent, we want to celebrate with you for our decade of adventure. Now it is your turn to go on an adventure with us. Be on the lookout for quest givers and location way-points. Complete your quest and collect your reward in the Item Shop in the Theme Room. Your quests might be simple or take you on a tour of SNAFU Con 2019.

As part of our decade long adventure of bringing you this con, we asked our dedicated staff to write you some notes and stories about their time with us. You'll find them attached throughout the con book. Thank you so much to the staff. We appreciate every one of you.

ATTENTION ADVENTURERS!

Welcome to SNAFU Con! It's a land full of fun and adventure, but the people need your help! All throughout the con, there are citizens who are looking for qualified heroes and heroines to complete tasks for rewards. Do you have what it takes?

How to Play!

Your adventure begins at the Item Shop in the Silver State Foyer. Ask the shopkeep for a Bronze Questing Ribbon – it attaches to your badge! Now, look around for citizens with exclamation points or question marks over their heads. Ask them for a quest! They may ask you for something that can be completed right away or it may be a more complicated request. If you need to leave the area to fulfill the requirements, they'll give you a slip of paper with the quest written on it. Once you complete the objective, take the slip of paper and the proof of completion to ANY quest-giver for your XP!

Quest-givers will give you stickers to track your XP on your Questing Ribbon. Different tasks will give you different amounts of XP, based on difficulty. Once your ribbon is full, take it back to the Item Shop! There, you'll have the option of using your XP to get a bronze-level prize OR a Silver Questing Ribbon. A full Silver Ribbon can be used for a silver-level prize or a Gold Questing Ribbon. A full Gold Ribbon means you can pick one of the top-level gold prizes!

Rules!

1. Quests may take you to all areas of the con! Please be respectful of our less adventurous con-goers.
2. Some quests are repeatable, but some can only be completed once per day.
3. Take care of your ribbons. SNAFU Con is not responsible for any lost XP.
4. You can work on more than one ribbon at a time. If you complete a quest that gives you more XP than you have space for, ask the quest-giver for another same-color ribbon. If they don't have the correct color, just ask for your stickers (but be careful not to lose them). You can get another ribbon from the Item Shop.
5. Prizes are first-come, first-served. But don't despair! Gold-level prizes will change day-by-day to give everyone the best chance at earning something cool!
6. Remember that there is no running in the con areas or the hallways.
7. Have fun, Adventurers!

Letters from the Chairs

Hello again to all of our wonderful attendees!

It's already that time of year again. It feels like it's been far less than a year since I last wrote a message here for our staff and attendees to read. To be fair though, it also feels like quite a bit less than 10 years since our very first convention! I feel so excited to be here with you all again.

I want to extend a personal thank you to each and every attendee. Without you we wouldn't be where we are today, and I feel truly privileged to be part of the team that brings this convention to you every year.

I'd also like to extend my gratitude to our dedicated and inspiring staff. You all work hard and make staffing every year incredibly fun and rewarding. I've been here for every SNAFU to date and I've been staffing for nine years because of the fantastic community and camaraderie that our staff brings to the convention every year.

This is our convention and I am proud to play a part in bringing SNAFU to life every year and I hope the next 10 years and beyond are bigger, brighter, and even more fun than these fantastic 10 years have already been.

Thank you all again so much, I sincerely hope that your convention is everything you hope for and more, this year, and every year to come.

What do you call a field full of statues?
Free range cockatrice.

Hi everyone!!

Did you know this is our 10th anniversary? We've made it 10 years! Oh man, we've been doing this 10 years . . . who feels old? Raise your hand. Okay now put it down because people are probably looking at you for randomly raising your hand while reading the con book. Or maybe not. You do you.

I remember when we hit our 5 year mark and it was like "wow, we made it" because 5 years is when people start taking a con seriously. When we turned 5 we were "all grown up" but now at 10 years I just feel old! Haha.

This year has been really interesting for me. We got a really slow start but when we finally got going, we gained momentum quickly. There were new and interesting challenges which, after doing 9 other cons, we thought we were through with. But no, we are living in interesting times. Oh wait, that's a curse, isn't it?

Seriously, though, it's been a wild ride (quite the adventure, eh?) and a lot of fun, and I've got a great feeling about this year. The staff have been amazing as always and we feel more collaborative than ever. We've even got some new people on the team bringing brand new content for your enjoyment. For example, I'm very excited to have our first ever manga library this year!

Thank you everyone! I'm really looking forward to this year and I can't wait to see you all out there having fun and getting into the adventure.

Ten years ago, Ami and I decided to go to Sacanime on a whim on a Sunday, because it had been forever since we'd been able to go to a con, since I worked on Saturdays and couldn't ever get a full weekend off. So we drive two hours, because back then, if you wanted to go to a convention, pretty much your only option was to travel to California. As we're buying a Sacanime day badge, we see the worst-looking fliers ever at the registration window. These fliers didn't have cute anime girl artwork or eye-catching bright colors. All it had was a "Image Not Found" graphic along with the words "Do YOU want to help bring an anime convention to Reno, NV?" And of course our answer was... "Hell yeah we do!" And ten years later, here we are. All because of the worst fliers in the world, which against all the odds and without amazing artwork or cool colors, fulfilled their purpose and brought us our very own anime convention.

I asked a Bard to write me a joke.
He gave me this one and charged me 8 gold.
I asked him why so much.
He said 2 coin a phrase.

Last year near the end of con I was sitting at a table and a random con goer came up to me and handed me a clementine "counterfeit ghost" to hand out as part of the ghost hunt to tell people to eat more fruit. <3

One of the years we were at the Nugget, a group of 5 or 6 people wandered down the hallway and came across the Rave. They were dressed to the nines: full tuxedos and ball gowns. They looked curious so a few of us staffers went over to say hi. Turns out, they were at the policeman's ball on the other side of the air wall and decided to check out what was going on. After a brief conversation, someone in the group decided they needed to head back, and was met with groans. "We want to come to this party, it looks way more fun over here!"

I can't think of any funny stories, but I want to use this opportunity to express how wonderful it's been working with our artists for 10 years. We get to meet so many fantastic people when they join our Artist Alley for the first time. And we've had some artists who have been with us since we were a tiny two-day con! Over the years, we've had the privilege to see how much they grow to become even more fabulous artists! Nuriko and I are so lucky to be able to work with you all!

I remember one year we were having trouble printing our schedules; the printer kept eating them. We posted to social media that we were getting a lot of "accordion schedules" and one attendee commented that he wanted an accordion schedule. We had already trashed all the bad schedules so we printed one special for him and Llama folded it carefully into an accordion fan. I more or less forgot about it until one morning at registration I hear a scream of joy "YES!" as the attendee discovered that we gave him an accordion schedule as requested. He later donated it to the charity auction and it did sell, but I don't remember what it sold for.

K-Pop Random Dance Play

Show your mastery of K-Pop in this fast paced dance-off! We'll play just the chorus of the hottest K-Pop songs. If you hear one you know, jump into the middle and show us what you can do.

The year we did multiverse was the first year we branched out into having a backstory for our theme and it was a lot of work. The plan had been to create factions of red and blue that slowly combined into a "purple" universe as con went on. We did that by making signs to mark "red" events and "blue" events. Staff then went around and began tagging the signs of "opposing" colors and sort of playing up the two groups. The plan was to wait until late Saturday night and turn everything purple.

At one point, one of my tech staffers (who is my mom lol) created this purple cloak out of the left over purple wrist bands we had in ops. She thought it was kinda silly, but I promptly put it on and wore it around. I was called to registration for some reason and as I was making my way through the hall I offered an attendee a purple button and asked them to join the resistance. They then exclaimed, "wait! You guys planned this!?" and suddenly got really excited about the theme.

Creating a back story for con was a lot of hard work but that reaction was totally worth it.

So I forgot what year this was, we were at the Nugget and tabletop was in an auxiliary room up a floor and it was the Halloween con. Anyway, our late night crew, Woahyau and Soul miser, are standing around at like 3 AM, just manning the desk, nothing's going on. This guy wanders in...the staff was gonna give him a 'hello, how ya doing?', but this guy seemed a bit...off-kilter, so they hesitate for a bit. Guy turns over to the phone in the room, picks it up, sloppily dials like 5 numbers, and then hangs up. That's about the time Woahyau calls in the code everclear cause this guy is three sheets to the wind. He turns away from the phone, and staggers out the doorway. As he's leaving though, he gets his head caught in some decorative webbing we had about (Halloween y'know). After extricating himself from it, he manages to pluck a plastic centipede out of the webbing, and turns around in confusion, just to lock eyes with Woahyau and Soul miser, who have pretty much just been spectating the whole time. Without breaking eye contact, he then eats the plastic centipede, and reels off to wherever it is drunk people go at 3 AM. We still wonder if we can declare items that were 'eaten by drunks' as a loss on our taxes.

SFS #2-09: Bluerise Breakout

SFS #2-10: Corporate Interests

Starfinder • Levels 3-6

When agents aren't travelling across the galaxy in search of ancient civilizations, the Starfinder Society often sends its agents to showcase their skills with Pact Worlds corporations. Each of these adventures showcase different roles the Starfinder Society takes in the corporate world. From testing out new firearms and starships, to battling escaped outsiders used as corporate experiments, the PCs have the chance to showcase their skills!

How many kobolds does it take to change a light bulb? I don't know, the researcher hasn't come out of the cave yet.
